Phil expects to have the cost estimate back from the estimators on November 28 or 29 and have it to the committee shortly within a day or two after that. The planning and design final report is due next week. Phil is working on producing the materials needed for that.

There was discussion about additional site research. The committee authorized Phil to request O’Reilly, Talbot, and Okun Associates (the geotech firm) to perform test boring holes not to exceed the cost of $6,000.

The decision was made to pass on hazardous materials testing at this time. All hazardous materials were removed from the Shaw farm house before the controlled burn. John Couture suggested that the planning board might have a level 1 site assessment done already on Shaw Farm.
